Police's beautification, security work continues

By AL POST MCN Staff Writer

Another upgrading effort at old Romulus Police Headquarters, a former school building, was all but completed recently, as a combination of decorative stones and greenery replaced an unsightly small mountain of dirt.

The latest landscaping work project was accomplished through a major grant from the Department of Justice and healthy labor involvement by the city's Department of Public Works employees.

Since his arrival as police chief in 1996, Charles Kirby has overseen a remarkable transformation at the former elementary school.

Back in 1923 the key lines of communication within the building were chalkboards, observers said. Today the vastly improving lines of law enforcement communication are helping Romulus police become tops in their field.

In the past year, Romulus police (and other municipalities involved in the 34th District Court) became the second in Wayne County to implement video arraignments, saving the department substantial funds and cutting police officers' time in court.

An added benefit of eliminating the need to take prisoners from police headquarters to court for ar-

A continual public urination and waste product blight problem in the Inkster-Eureka road area has led to the formation of a neighborhood watch group and a vow to bring the issue to the attention of Taylor Mayor Gregory Pitoniak.

Linda Tank, spokeswoman for the group, brought her neighbors' complaints to the Romulus City Council last week and heard Councilwomen Deborah Romak and Mary Collins voice support for correction of the problem.

Both said they would be willing to personally contact the former 22nd District Representative and ask that he continue the same good neighbor policy he pressed while a state legislator. If need be, the two councilwomen said, they might even be willing to join the homeowners in a visit to an upcoming Taylor council session.

Tank complained that refuse papers and plastic gloves used to handle meat products are constantly blowing on to their property. She said some of the debris is caused by garbage pickers, who either take things out or put things in the local businesses' dumpsters.

"While the neighborhood is in Romulus, the problems originate across the street in Taylor," she said.

Even more offensive, Tank said, is the public view of both men and women relieving themselves in the area at "Our watch members unfortunately feel like we are the 'dead end' neighborhood. Why should our children be forced to view such actions that normal people do behind bathroom doors," Tank asked the council.

Council members told Tank there is no reason her neighbors should feel like "dead end" residents. "You are as important as those living downtown," council members repeated several times.

Tank said her neighborhood group had 15 persons attend its first meeting despite its 10 a.m. time period. The group is now planning a second meeting on Aug. 11 at her home.

There is no sign of city street sweeping there despite the problem, Tank said. "Only my husband, who has had four heart attacks and a ministroke, has occasionally swept the street. I don't think that is his responsibility," she said.

All we are asking is some teamwork between the local strip mall businesses, the city officials of Romulus and Taylor and local residents, Tank raignments is safety, since there have been some isolated brief escapes in past years. Grant money also has been

Baron's school now in jeopardy

By AL POST MCN Staff Writer

Did opportunity die last

The opportunity alluded to of course is that being offered to Detroit school drop outs, who decided to climb back into the mainstream of life by earning a belated high school diploma, developing a dream for further education and/or planning a career.

Many are speculating those opportunities have been killed by a late night Lansing school aid package approval that included the demise of the year old Baron-Romulus school.

That Romulus school operation in Detroit was hampered several times by short term closures ordered by Detroit fire marshals. Detroit School officials also pressed for permanent closure of the school by the courts, calling the Romulus-Barons efforts an "act of piracy." The courts rejected that motion.

But the temporary closures also ended up trimming students' attendance at classes and stiffled some educational dreams for students early on.

Romulus education leaders have grown increasingly frustrated over the "discriming tory actions" taken by the legislators that blocked school districts from opening schools in "first class districts" particularly since Detroit is the only such "first class district" in the state of Michigan.

Romulus officials first hoped that Gov. John Engler would cast a line item veto on that portion of the school aid package, since Engler has been supportive of the Romulus action for the past year.

But recent statements issued by John Truscott, Engler's press secretary, now lead Romulus officials into believing such a veto will not oc-

As of Tuesday Acting Superintendent Joel Carr said "we are all convinced there is little hope of operating Baron's School as we currently know Scores of state and regional educational meetings are slated for coming weeks involving a multitude of school issues including the Baron's School issue and that of "at risk student funds.'

As things stand now the school aid bill would delete such funds from the Romulus school district, since it does not have 5,000 such at risk students.

Being the current school aid bill (which still hasn't been signed by Engler) only blocks district's from starting schools of choice in Detroit, some questioned whether Peter Bakema, who founded the Baron's School with Romulus' help, would switch the facility

While technically the school was open to drop outs from anywhere in Wayne County, it primarily was attended by Detroit residents. Many possibilities still loom for such a practice-but Romulus is still hoping that lightning will strike in the form of an Engler

Bus drivers needed

Romulus school officials are on the hunt for additional bus drivers.

District Transportation Director Norm McLenon said applicants need to be 21 years of age and must be in good health and have a good driving re-

Equally important, Mc-Clenon said, is the ability of the drivers to get along with

"All new drivers start as substitutes," he said, "and undergo 20 hours of drivers' training."

McLenon added the district wants to fill the empty driver slots by Aug. 1. Applicants need to stop by the school administration office on Grant road from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Banko warns

Construction holes must be fenced in

By AL POST MCN Staff Writer

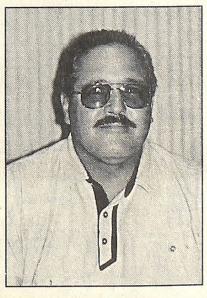

Treacherous open holes created during downtown construction work should be surrounded with security fences so that children or adults cannot be accidentally hurt, former Romulus Ordinance Department Director Steve Banko warned last week.

Banko, who served as ordinance director for over a decade during the administration of former Mayor Beverly McAnally, revealed in an interview last Friday that he longs to get reinvolved with his hometown of Romulus.

He currently serves as code enforcement officer in Livonia, but misses being an active participant in Romulus life. He also is one of 11 candidates for Romulus City Council this November.

Banko feels that the "city's code enforcements are slipping and that blight is on the rise," since he left office.

The 46-year-old ordinance

officer declares "city ordinances were created to be helpful to public citizens and should be enforced.

"When a new business is given a temporary permit," Banko said, "that inspection should be followed up. What I'm saying is we need to instill a new pride of living in this city."

Banko also complains that

"our roads and sewers are atrocious" and work needs to be done on both the "roads and sidewalks in our subdivisions."

If elected this November, Banko promises that he will represent citizens on such problems as the deepwell permit issue, road improvements and the weak enforcement of ordinance violations.

Banko has resided in Romulus for 20 years, formerly living in Southgate. He is a graduate of Holy Redeemer High School and attended the University of Detroit for three

He has served as vice president of Cory Elementary School's Parent Teacher Organization, chairman of the Romulus Goodfellows and Beautification Committee and has been a member of the Romulus Little League's executive board. Banko's wife, Carolyn, is currently the deputy city treasurer and his mother-in-law, Linda Norman, serves as the city's senior citizen center coordinator.

Wayne expands

New planner welcomes businesses

By JENNY JOHNSON MCN Special Writer

Who's that new face at city hall? If you're a new business owner in Wayne, you have probably already met Robert Perry.

As the city's new planner he is the person who gives a helping hand to business owners who want to set up shop in Wayne. Armed with his book on city ordinances and zoning codes, he walks them through the process and helps them prepare for their site plans to be brought before the planning commission.

He said, "People are pleasantly surprised when they see that we are as excited to work with people as we are. We really go the extra mile."

He said the planning and development department tries to get business owners up and running as quickly as possible. It is possible for a new business to be built and open within two to three months after meeting with Perry. If they are taking over an existing building they can possibly open within a month.

Since he started his job six weeks ago he said he has seen five new businesses. At the last planning commission meeting four brand new businesses were recommended for approval by the city council. Wayne is booming.

Glory sought

Robert Perry

"Wayne is a gem in the rough in the housing market," he said.

Perry and his wife bought their house in Wayne 14 months ago. In fact he lives so close that he walks to work.

He is originally from Westland, where his father was once the fire marshal. When he was 10 the family moved to Oakland County and Perry graduated from Milford Lakeland High School. Then he moved on to Eastern Michigan University where he received a bachelor's degree in urban

With a bit of persuasion from his dad, he planned on working for the fire department.

"But one day I stumbled into a geography course and the bug bit me," Perry said.

His initial interest was environmental planning but he said there aren't a lot of career choices. So he switched to urban planning with a minor in conservation biology.

After graduation he worked for the city of Ypsilanti. After that he moved to SEMCOG, a metropolitan planning agency that serves the seven county region of southeast Michigan. They are most recognized for their transportation planning but Perry worked in the community and economic development department. He conducted technical assistance workshops to help the different departments with technical issues.

"SEMCOG is one of the 10 most respected metropolitan councils in the nation. Working for them was a learning experience and really helped to springboard my career forward," he said.

His career goals for now include continuing in the technical planning path like what he does in reviewing the site plans for Wayne businesses.

He came back to the city

level because he said, "The opportunities here are endless.
Anything can happen."

Perry said he considers his department the "quality of life department."

"We help people negotiate their path and we welcome them with open arms," he said.

Romulus teen wins $1,000 scholarship

Although many Western Wayne County students applied for the $1,000 Herman O. Hayes Sr. Memorial Scholarship, it was a young woman from Romulus who won it.

Marjorie Sovinski, a graduate of Divine Child High School, is the recipient of the award. She graduated in June with a grade point average of 3.869, sixth in a class of 197 students.

She was a member of the National Honor Society, Science Olympiad, editor of the yearbook, member of the Math Club and the Summer Science Program. She also participated in track and cross country events and tutors.

In addition, she is the youth representative on the Parish Council, and an Eucharistic minister and coordinates the schedule for the altar servers.

Her high grade point average plus her involvement with church and community work earned the prize for her, according to Mavis Taylor-Hayes, widow of a youth worker for whom the scholarship was named.

"We had a lot of applicants and many of them had very high grade point averages. It was a difficult decision to choose from among so many qualified high school seniors," said Taylor-Hayes. "Grade point averages are very important. However, we found it impressive that Marjorie has devoted so much time to volunteering for her church and her community in addition to maintaining her high academic standards. She was an excellent candidate."

Taylor-Hayes said she has been involved in awarding scholarships through sororities and other organizations, and his year decided to establish one in honor of her late husband.

"He worked with young people through the Boy Scouts and various youth activities," she said. "By awarding a scholarship to someone who is a community volunteer, it will be a way of carrying on his work."

After seeing the announcement of the scholarship in the newspaper, Marjorie Sovinski submitted two letters of reference and an essay on why she wants to continue her education. Then, it was up to Mavis Taylor-Hayes and Sheryl Bradford to oversee the selection, and ultimately to award the scholarship to Marjorie.

The scholarship recipient plans to attend the University of Detroit and major in chemical engineering.

WCCC works towards meetings its goals

By LORI GILLESPIE MCN Staff Writer

Wayne County Community College's Western Campus is continuing to make its way down the comeback trail. Nearly five years after reopening, the Western Campus is under a new administration, and the student population is just over 330, and climbing.

In 1991, the campus was forced to suspend classes due to financial difficulties. Prior to re-opening in 1993, the Friends of the Western Campus Council met to discuss strategies for making the campus a more vital part of the community.

Some of their suggestions included: Establishing a family center on campus, establishing youth programs, community outreach, cooperative development of a science and math center, collaborative development of a shared vocational/technical center, and designating space for a conference center.

When Dr. Curtis Ivery took over as college president in 1995, WCCC campuses were either centrally or de-centrally controlled. One of his first actions as president was to switch everything to site-based control. This means the provost at each campus is responsible for every decision made for that location. In 1996, this responsibility was given to George Davis, who took over for Hattie Johnson.

"George's job is to resurrect

"George's job is to resurrect the campus, like a phoenix flying out of the ashes," said Russ Tuttle, Western Campus community outreach consultant. "But, this won't happen overnight."

Since being named provost, Davis has been a featured speaker at the Belleville Optimist Club, the Belleville Rotary Club, and has spoken to high school counselors and students in the area, letting them know that the campus is back on its feet. He and Tuttle have also become more involved with the Chamber of Commerce and the Belleville Central Business Community.

Although not all of the recommendations were feasible, the campus has made great strides towards meeting most of them.

A family crisis center is now open on the campus. The group meets once a week, and is made up of battered women, and children who have been physically and sexually abused.

The Free Spirit Day Care Center offers 24-hour care for the children of students and residents in the area.

The Western Campus is also in the process of setting up a tutoring lab. Students will be able to choose from a large selection of VCR tapes on a variety of subjects, and view them in the lab. All of the professors at the school are willing to come in early and stay late to help students in need.

The campus has an agreement with the Wayne-Westland Vocational Education Center, as well as the Inkster Public Housing.

Student Talent Academy Reaching for Success (STARS), a program put on by the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency (WCRESA), sets out to recruit middle and high school students who are interested in graduating from high school and continuing on to college or a training program.

After finding a strong interest in the nursing field, the Western Campus is redesigning some of their labs to bring a nursing program to the campus. They have already established an agreement with Madonna University, in which students pursuing a nursing degree would have their credits transferred to the university following two years at WCCC.

"We looked at the community needs, and have been able to react by offering different programs," Davis explained. "We have established long-term goals, and avoided the band-aid approach."

Despite the fact that the campus re-opened in 1993, Tuttle reports that people still come up to him and say they didn't know the school had opened.

"That's why we are involved with the different organizations," he said. "We want them to know that we're still alive.

By LORI GILLESPIE them back in, she didn't come in. There are a lot of wild animals like fever around there are a lot of wild animals like fever around there.

Barbara Schmitt, of Plymouth, and her family had given up hope of ever seeing their little dog again, when a woman in Canton phoned to say she thought she had seen Glory in her backyard.

Schmitt and her husband had gone to visit their daughter, who had been studying in Spain, leaving their two longhaired, miniature dachshunds in the care of some friends. Less than a week into the visit, one of the dogs had disappeared.

"Their house is in the middle of some woods," Schmitt explained. "They had some chains to put the dogs on when they put them outside, but the husband forgot to tie them up. When they looked to bring them back in, she didn't come in. There are a lot of wild animals, like foxes, around there. It's weird that she wouldn't come when she was called. She could have wandered off and gotten turned around in the woods."

This was six weeks ago, and the Schmitts were just coming to terms with the fact that Glory was probably gone forever, when they received a phone call, which has stirred their motions.

"This woman from Canton called, and said she thinks she saw Glory in her backyard," Schmitt explained. "She said the dog came up to the door, but when she went out to look, the dog ran away. Two hours later, she took her own dog to the vet, and saw our poster."

Glory was lost near Ann Arbor Road. The woman from Canton lives off Beck and Cherry Hill roads. Schmitt said, if it was Glory, it would be a miracle for many reasons. First, she would have had to evade other predators, find food and water, and survive the wicked weather a few weeks ago. But, she remains hopeful that it was Glory.

"She's a very friendly dog,"

Schmitt said. "Usually, if nothing spooks her, she'll come when called. She'll actually roll over to have her belly petted."

Glory is a female, five to six years old, and is a red and black dapple color, with a lot of black on her ears. The dog is wearing a brown, leather collar, which has Schmitt's name and phone number on it.

The Schmitts are offering a reward, call (313) 455-5283 if you see or find the dog.

Cement work has finally begun in 5-Points area

Despite cries from the skeptics, cement has begun to fly in downtown Romulus.

The cementing efforts began last Friday at 5 Points, but Monday's inclement weather proved to be another bottle neck for the work crews there.

Department of Public Works Director David Paul expects the work efforts to speed up now that the crews are dropping cement. Two lanes will be poured at a time, Paul said, always leaving one lane open for emergency and local resident travel.

The cement crews will return later to install approaches to driveways, Paul revealed.

The cement work began two days after the last Downtown Development Authority meeting held in the City Council Chambers.

The cement work is expected to add two key elements for the public: (1) a public view that the road project is speeding up and (2) a lowering of the airborne dirt

Mayor William Oakley and DDA Chairman William Crane attended the work session to press for larger labor crews and keeping construction time promises.

Last week's promised 5 Points closure was delayed one day as one project foreman reportedly quit unexpectedly. Both Oakley and Crane also pressed construction leaders to add more detour signs to the construction area and closeby neighborhoods.

Such signs were critical in helping shoppers find alternate routes to their favorite

Goddard road businesses. Business owners and operators complained earlier that sales at their businesses were down 25 percent because of the road construction and the flying dirt caused by various cars and trucks using Goddard dents arrive at Merriman Elementary School each summer day to begin an educational enrichment program called Academic Adventure Camp.

Romulus students attend Adventure Camp

The exciting opportunity for young learners uses a child centered group approach to study the major subject areas.

Curriculum Coordinator and project director for the first time program is Lori Fritz, a first year teacher from Barth Elementary School. "Our program provides a needed service for the community and at $35 per week it would be difficult to find a day care program at a lower rate" Ms. Fritz exclaimed.

She also mentioned that the program continues to grow with new students being enrolled each day.

All Adventure Camp activities are designed to be fun for children, she said, because

More than 50 Romulus stu- this is an enrichment program and teachers are not restricted to specific outcomes. A problem solving approach is used for each academic activity and each problem has more than one correct solution. This encourages all students to become involved by having the youth work in groups. After a great deal of discussion, the group decides on a single solution. The solution is then shared with all other groups.

Teacher Jill Hillis, who is responsible for the older children, likes this educational philosophy. "It is wonderful to see their young minds attack a problem without fear of being wrong. Their solutions generally are plausible and contain a lot of forethought," Hillis

The camp is run five days a week from 7:30 until 11:30 a.m. with lunch available after camp activities are completed for the day.

Camper Crystal Kirkland-Scott, a fifth grader from Halecreek School, said she came to camp because her mother wanted her to have the experience. "Now that I am here I really am enjoying it" Crystal said. "This is a lot more fun than just staying at home."

Seventh grade student Joe Miller agrees. "This is fun. You are always doing interesting things and still learning without really studying," Joe said.

Like Miller, Ashley Stevens is from Merriman School, but going into the fifth grade. She said the program gives her a lot to do during summer vacation and thinks the camp projects are not really work. "My favorite things are the computers, recess, gym, lunch and the neat science experiments we do," Ashley stated.

Primary teacher Jerry Belanger feels the program has been successful as he enjoys the casual atmosphere present in the camp. "We are using the teaching models of cooperative learning, think, pair and share as well as activity centered learning" Belanger said.

The students work together well and it is interesting to see how fast they do learn a concept. We like teaching around a central theme which connects the four major subjects we are teaching, Belanger

Already the students have worked together to build tornado tubes, which when activated show how a tornado works. Another favorite project was making peanut butter clay that was molded into diffeent objects and then eaten.

Soon a whole unit on bubbles will begin that should prove to be a highlight of academic camp. "We are so pleased with the behavior and dedication of our students" Fritz said.

"The longer we are together the better it becomes and hopefully the program will be repeated next year," Fritz added

Registration continues each day at Merriman School. If parents would like more information they can call Fritz at 941-6900. The city recreation program follows the camp each afternoon.

YWCA of Western Wayne receives United Way allocation

The YWCA of Western Wayne County recently received $292,594 from United Way Community Services to provide support service to children and youth in crisis, young parents and positive leisure activity for the family.

The allocation was announced by Corinne Vincent, Executive Director and Al Lucarelli, chair of United Way Community Services' Fund Distribution Committee. The funds were raised during the United Way Torch Drive, which provides allocations to some 130 health and human service agencies helping more than 1.7 million people throughout Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The YWCA provides decentralized services to families in thirteen Western Wayne County communities. Support groups for at risk youth are provided at local schools. After school youth groups address drug and violence prevention through their learning of positive leisure skills and conflict resolution. Young parents work with their infants and toddlers in groups that practice child development, parenting and coping skills. A variety of recreation opportunities are provided to meet special needs.

Director Vincent noted, "We know that it is important to the citizens of our communities to see their dollars at work. The YWCA appreciates the confidence entrusted and strives to personalize service to the particular needs of families and neighborhoods.

These allocations are possible because the people of this community care about their friends and neighbors in need. They generously gave $59.2 million to the 1997 Torch Drive to support the essential services provided by agencies like the YWCA of Western Wayne County," said United Way Community Service President and CEO Virgil H. Carr.

United Way Community Services is dedicated to uniting the community to mobilize volunteer, financial and information resources to efficiently meet the human service needs of Detroit and Southeastern Michigan.

A former Plymouth-Canton school board candidate has been chosen to lead nine area units of a "stake" of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Daniel F. Dunningham, a Canton resident, was installed as president of the 3,300 member Westland Stake recently at the stake center at 7575 N. Hix Monte J. Brough, a presiding officer from Salt Lake City, Utah, officiated.

Dunningham replaces Lee Freeman of Livonia, who served eight years as president.

The Westland Stake is composed of nine smaller units or wards including those in Canton, Dearborn, Livonia.

A planned Plymouth-Canton CROP walk slated for Sept. 28 will seek to raise $15,000 in funds to feed the hungry in the area and aroundthe-world.

The 10K,5K and 3K walks will begin at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth and travel throughout the city and Canton Township.

Last year CROP walks across Michigan raised $1.7 million of which $412,281 will remain in the state.

Twenty five percent of the money collected at the September walk will be donated to the Plymouth-Canton Salvation Army. The remainder will be used worldwide.

Pledge envelopes can be obtained from any church in Plymouth or Canton.

Recent CROP walks raised $20,000 in Romulus/Belleville and $12,345 in Wayne/ Westland.

An unusual musical group known as "Jews for Jesus--Liberated Wailing Wall" will perform at the Calvary Baptist Church of Canton at 11 a.m. July 27

The group uses a piano, guitar, flute and dunbek (a Middle Eastern drum) to supplement their singing lyrics taken from both the Bible's Hebrew scriptures and portions of the New Testament.

The group weaves into their musical presentations short personal testimonies of how they came to believe that Jesus was really the messiah.

There is no admission charge, but a free will offering for the performers will be taken. The church is located 43065 Joy road, Canton.

Youth honored for achievement

An area youth was honored at the 9th Annual Judicial Jazz Program sponsored by "Citizens for Wayne County Youth". Kimberly Jackson was recognized at the Detroit Yacht Club this month for her achievements since her involvement in the Westland Youth Assistance Program.

Her plaque read, "I have to learn to do things for myself; no one else can do them for me".

Kim is a recent graduate of Wayne Memorial High School, Mayor Robert Thomas' alma mater. Upon hearing of her award, Mayor Thomas said, "Kim stands for all the good things in life: dedication, commitment, and work. Kim is going on to the Detroit College of Business. It is my personal opinion she can reach any goal in life that she chooses. The very best to an outstanding person."

It was a joy to see Kim honored for her success in the program ... Kimberly Jackson

Kim attended the award ceremony with her mentor, Carol Sparks of Westland, Ronaele Bowman, Director of the Westland Youth Assistance Program, and Judge Gail McKnight, who serves on the Youth Assistance Advisory Board.

Judge McKnight said, "Westland's Youth Assistance Program is viewed as one of, if not the best, programs in the County. It was a joy to see Kim honored for her success in the program which she achieved with the help of her mentor and the Youth Assistance program staff."

School volunteers make a difference

The implementation of a HOSTS (Help One To Succeed) Structured Mentoring Program in Language Arts was and continues to be a successful collaborative endeavor among the Inkster Middle School students and volunteer mentors. The mentors who serve as tutors are one of the primary keys to the ultimate success of the program.

HOSTS is a nationally acclaimed model that works and is in compliance with effective school research as defined by the U.S. Department of Education. It is a proven strategy for accelerating learning and is tailored to student needs and district instructional philosophies, resources and objec-

The newly instituted HOSTS program helps to embellish the concept of the old African Proverb, "It takes an entire village to educate a child". Volunteers have given the greatest gift that one can give to support this program and that is the gift of time.

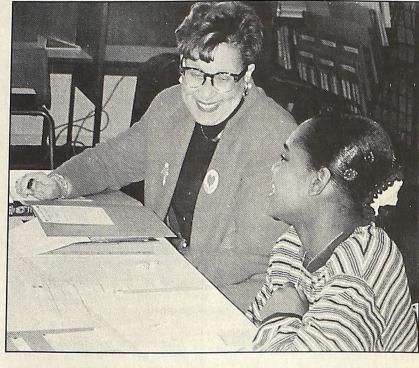

The structured, comprehensive and coordinated HOSTS models used at Inkster Middle School (Formerly Blanchette Middle School) operates from the premise that the use of mentors is the most promising strategy incorporated into the program. Everyone has something to offer. One of Inkster's greatest resources is the community. Community involvement is essential to the success of the program. Dedicated volunteers have given their precious time, effort, and expertise to keep the Inkster Middle School HOSTS Program up and running for seventh and eighth grade students. They have pledged to continue their support during the 1997/1998 school year.

In the HOSTS Program, mentors are selected, paired with a student and encouraged to establish rapport with their students even before prescriptive lesson plans are begun. A mentor serves as a student's personal coach. At the same time he/she is also the student's tutor and role model.

Thanks a Million WEEKLY SYNDICATED COLUMN by PERCY ROSS

Millionaire Percy Ross is known for his philanthropic work. He offers help and encouragement for those in need. He has earned a fortune and a wealth of knowledge during his lifetime and wants to share both. His motto: "He who gives while he lives... also knows where it goes. '

How Will You Look Yourself In The Mirror?

Dear Mr. Ross: I'm so stupid and have made such a mess of my life I don't know what to do. I've had such bad acne that I'm embarrassed to leave the house. I've been called crater face and alien until I've cried. You have no idea what I've been through. I'm 17 and my parents barely make enough money to feed us. Five months ago they finally said I could go to a dermatologist and she put me on Acutane. It's beginning to make a big difference. It should-it costs a lot of money and my entire family has made sacrifices so I can take it. Well, to get to the point-for the first time in my life boys have begun to notice me. I was in such a hurry to have boys like me, that I went all the way with the first guy who asked me to. That was 2 months ago and now I'm worried I'm pregnant. What's worse-this drug causes major birth defects and if you're pregnant you can't take it. Mr. Ross, I don't want a baby, whether it's healthy or not. I'm too young. Can you help me with an abortion? Miss R. L. ... The Ledger, Queens, NY

Dear Miss L.: I can help you, but only if you do something which will prove to be the hardest thing you've ever done in your life. First, stop taking the acne drug. Second, take a pregnancy test. That's the easy part. If you are pregnant, then comes the hard part-talk to your parents because you should at least consider adoption. Whatever final decision you and your parents arrive at, you can count on me for my financial support.

Dear Percy: My sister and her children are coming to spend a week with me. We haven't seen each other in 15 years and I've never seen in person my nieces and nephews. Money has kept us apart. I've finally saved enough for them to fly out and visit. It would have been cheaper for me to go visit them, but physically almost impossible. I have multiple sclerosis and travel is extremely difficult. If you could send me $200 for a couple meals out and a movie, it would enhance the time we're able to spend together. You don't need to make a decision right away, but your help would be infinitely appreciated.

Ms. T. C. ... Daily Sun, Yuma, AZ

Dear Ms. C.: What is there to consider? The only thing that would stand in the way of my helping you, would be if I were penniless. And the latest word from my accountant says that isn't the case. In fact, things look pretty good this month so I'm sending you $250. Enjoy your time together.

Dear Mr. Ross: I hate asking for help, but this is for the safety of my unborn child. I'm due next month. We currently live in a trailer park and have just received news that we live next door to a child molester. We explored all of our options to get rid of him. The landlord says he has rights to live in a home, too. Our only other option is to move ourselves, for which we would need $2,000 (we would relocate our trailer to another park in another town). We could come up with it if we didn't have to plan things for the baby. Please help us give a little extra safety to our child.

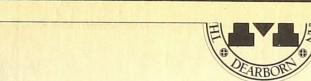

Mrs. K. P. ... Miner-Extra, Newport, WA

Dear Mrs. P.: Just because you live next door to a child molester, doesn't mean you have to choose him as your babysitter. Even if I did help you move, who's to say what your new neighbors would be like-serial rapist, axe murderer, drug dealer-I think you get the idea. The thing is to be aware and be cautious. If you told me your entire trailer park was comprised of child molesters, then I'd say move. But as long as you have one child molester, who has been identified, I don't sense the urgency in your needing my help to move.

Personality profile Part-time director takes on full-time position

By SHARON POPEK MCN Special Writer

Recreation Supervisor Keith Alexander started part time last fall and loves his job. He's full time now, of course, and runs a variety of activities at the Wayne Community Cen-

Right now, he's handling many of the aquatic director's duties until a new person is hired. He also directs the Fun Squad and organizes the After School Rec programs in all the elementary schools; runs the Adult Women's Volleyball and co-ed volleyball leagues; Men's Adult Softball and Men's Over-40 Softball Leagues; Girls Softball Leagues, including Pee-Wees, Juniors and Seniors and special events.

Keith listens to those who have a concern or complaint as staff "needs to know who they are working for."

Special events include Winterfest, Dad-Daughter and Mother-Son date nights, Marshmallow Drop, fireworks, Wheelfest, Halloween Walk and end the year with "I'm Dreaming of a White Christmas." Of course, he has a lot of help both paid and vol-

"It's hard work to coordinate everything but great to see people enjoy the events," reports Keith.

His next big project is the organizing of Planet Playscape. It will be a 15,000square-foot structure and every facet will be community built from the design, collection of materials, actual labor and maintenance.

with an older sister. He received his bachelor of science degree from Michigan State in health and physical education. Next, he attended Indiana University where he received his master's degree in recreation with emphasis on sports administration.

He played all sports in both school and rec programs, adding golf while in high school. His two sets of parents get along well and attend important family events together. That's good because Keith will marry Kirsten Bauer of Ann Arbor next month. They met at MSU and plan to honeymoon at Disney World. Kirsten works as a human resource associate at University of Michigan Hospital. They are buying a house in Wayne from Ed Phillips.

One of the best things about his job is that "you are always working with new kids, so you're not doing the same thing 12 months a year."

"People are now realizing the importance of recreation as a "key to a healthy life," according to Keith.

He's still amazed when people come in the Community Center and are surprised to find out what great facilities are available.

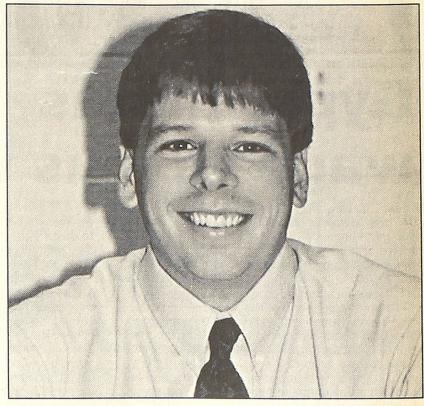

"Working with Kim Fallow and Jeff Rutter makes this not only a good place to work, but a good place to learn," is the way Keith sums up his job.

Gypsy moths wage vicious war

I'm a veteran of the gypsy moth wars. I can tell you more horror stories that what you might have heard around a Confederate encampment after Sherman burned his way through it. You thought the Viet Cong was tough... well these gypsy moths just keep coming, battalion after battalion

I'm told they have been especially ferocious in Van Buren, Huron and Romulus this year. Homeowners in these areas have been battling the fuzzy, yellow-headed caterpillars, but in most cases they are fighting a losing battle. Wayne County offers a spraying program that is moderately successful but in these areas it appears the spraying was simply

Ive lost a half dozen trees to these guys. They appear overnight in their white cocoons, usually high up in a tree. I'm here to tell you if you see one of these cocoons destroy it immediately. Take a match to it and make sure you burn every last caterpillar that is inside the cocoon. Check the ground below and make sure none get away. If you don't the little fuzzy creatures will soon begin eating every leaf in

One caterpillar can eat nine square feet of leaves in their lifetime. Each cocoon hatches hundreds of caterpillars. Ive seen a perfectly healthy tree be destroyed over a three day span. These little creatures get on an eating binge and there's no stopping them.

A common method of doing battle is to put a 6inch wide strip of burlap around the trunks of your trees. Supposedly the burlap stops the caterpillars from climbing up the tree, thus stopping the spread of caterpillars from tree to tree.

After watching my neighbor install the burlap and then spray his trees with Sevin, a highly toxic drown editor

insecticide, I followed suit, hoping to destroy the caterpillars before they really got going. You see I had done battle one-on-one with them a year ago and lost several trees.

Neither the burlap or the Sevin made much of a difference. Each day after work I would spend a couple hours in hand-to-hand combat with the banded creatures. I scraped thousands off of trees into soapy water, cruelly ending their lives. But it made no difference. You kill a thousand and next day two-thousand take their place. The never ending battle appeared to be a lost cause.

It got worse. My yard was full of large, old trees. Somehow the caterpillars moved from the top branches to the roof of my house, then to the screens and windows and outside walls. These guys, which reportedly can travel one mile per year, were using my house as a walk-way from tree to tree. The battle shifted from trees to house. Now I could easily kill the caterpillars who had left the protection of the trees, to plain view on the roof and sides of the house. The number of kills increased

Finally, the caterpillars turned to millions of moths. This happened in late August. What they left, however, was a patch of trees that looked like a tornado had hit them. Some survived, most died. I guess I was lucky, however. I am told by friends in Clare that they have seen an entire forest defoliated by these incredibly voracious leaf eaters.

I pity the people with big yards and lots of trees in Romulus and Van Buren. You will never face a tougher foe. If the gypsy moth wants your trees, he will have them. I know, I've been there, and lost.

Witness slain

To the editor:

I am writing concerning the brutal murder of Ricky Pollar. Ricky was a young brother who was killed last month. The Inkster Police Department forced Mr. Pollar to testify against someone and it cost him his life. I haven't heard or read anything about Ricky's murder. Could this be another cover up by the Police Department?

Mr. Pollar should have been in protective custody for his safety. I don't feel that I would be stepping on anyones toes to tell about Ricky's murder. Two young thugs just walked up to Ricky and shot him up! I feel for his family and friends too because this shouldn't have never happened. Maybe this crime is one that has to be covered up because it has been a hush situation! People stand up for our rights!

Market is 'Black Hole'

To the editor:

A lot of people these days talk of having money "in the stock market." Indeed, it often seems that nowadays few people have money anywhere but the stock market!

But there is a big problem. Strictly speaking there is no money "in" the stock market. Your broker may have forgot to tell you this, but the stock exchange is not a bank. It's only a place, an exchange mechanism.

Every dollar that comes into the stock market, goes out of the stock market every day! The stock market is a "zero sum game." It does not create money, although it many create the illusion of "paper wealth." This paper wealth is the so-called 'bubble.'

There are no vaults for your "money" on Wall Street. And that is a good thing, because they could not build a vault big enough to hold all the paper wealth that Wall Street has created during the last three years.

For example, Microsoft and Intel combined now have a market "worth" that equals the GDP of India!

Also remember, it takes a lot of money to keep the bubble inflated to the current high level. Presently, the market is sucking up money like a gigantic "financial black

This is why we have such low inflation, because huge amounts of money are being used solely to support the bubble. And, very little is left for consumption, wages, or anything else for that matter.

Soon the smart money will be leaving the market. They always get out first. Look for days when the market trades 600 million or more shares - but the Dow Industrials doesn't hardly budge. This is a sure sign that the smart money is selling out to the last suckers entering the market.

When this bull market ends, may God help the American people and the world economy.

Bill 4310 passed

To the editor:

The Legislature approved House Bill 4310, the school aid budget. Included in that bill is a new $20 million grant program to help local districts lower the size of their kindergarten through third grade classes to 17 or fewer students. I have supported this concept for many years and was a guiding force behind it's implementation in the Flint Community Schools in 1994. since then, Flint has seen a dramatic increase in their Michigan Education Assessment Program test scores. The number of fourth grade students achieving a satisfactory reading score increased by 43 percent over last year. Satisfactory math scores increased by

Now, Wayne-Westland School District will have the same opportunity to implement low class sizes and improve learning. The new grant program approved today will provide funding to help hire teachers, renovate classrooms, buy more supplies and pay for other necessary expenditures to get classes down to 17 students in the first four grades.

I want to again urge parents, students, business persons, community leaders and all residents of Wayne-Westland School District to contact your school board and superintendent and urge that they participate in this grant program. The application deadline in now Aug. 1, 1997 and grants will be awarded by Aug. 20, 1997. By road to much improved learning us in classrooms of only 17 students! 3d turning back the clock to the age of quill pens and parchment paper. In fact, I've even developed some empathy for the Luddites who, in the early 1800s, attempted to halt the Industrial Revolution with acts of sabotage. My worst enemy is the fax machine, which spills out endless news releases – some newsworthy, a new fascinating and the majority worthless.

Because faxing is relatively inexpensive, it has become the prime vehicle for transmitting information, whether the receiver has any possible use for it or not. In other words, it is a new and insidious way of transmitting junk mail. "Well, why not fax it to everyone - it doesn't cost much," I assume people are saying at the other end of the seemingly endless stream of facsimiles.

With six publications, all under the umbrella of Michigan Community Newspapers, our office receives six times the faxes that are directed to newspapers. Our receptionist has been instructed to call the senders of multiple copies of the same fax and request that they send only one in the future. It helps - a little - but still the faxes flow endlessly. Then, we can rely on the same sender mailing six identical news releases to us the next day, in case we didn't receive the six faxes.

Now, we have 12 copies of the same news release, most of which we do not use. Although this may come as a shock to some public relations firms, we do not care that a resident of Troy has just been promoted to a post in New Jersey.

We are a community-based newspaper which deals only with stories about people in our six communities and the issues which affect them.

Still, we have to peruse the pile of faxes in the event that a local story is hidden within them, because we don't want to miss an announcement that affects Wayne, Westland, Canton, Romulus, Belleville or Inkster.

Consequently, I find that more and more of my time is spent opening mail, perusing the endless pile of faxes and answering the phone when people call to ask, "Have you got my fax?

My polite response used to be, "It must be among the hundreds of faxes that I received today, and I will give it my full attention when it crosses my desk." However, I've had to amend that to a simple, but insincere, "Yes," after my first answer produced the following reply, "Well, we'll just fax you another one just in case you didn't receive it!"

Reflections

Yes, the fax machine is a time saver when important information needs to be communicated quickly. It's a valuable time-saving asset when a faxed message can save a last-minute visit from a reporter on deadline, or can facilitate a final change or confirmation of an advertisement without the sales representative leaving the office.

Perhaps, its advantages outweigh its disadvantages, but personally the facsimile machine is Public Enemy Number One. (Note: Please don't send me a fax telling me you agree with my view.)

Recently, I've had to persuade my spouse not to purchase a fax for our home office, which up to now has been my sanctuary from mega-technology.

Call Waiting ranks a second worst rating on my list, because of its wide abuse. Instead of being used to acknowledge a call and then return to the first caller, in many instances the first caller is relegated to "telephone limbo" while individuals hold lengthy conversations with the second caller.

Caller ID, however, rates high praises from me. I know who is on the other end of the phone before I pick it up - or choose not to pick it up. If I am busy and don't have time for conversation, I can return the call when it is more convenient for me.

The telephone is there for our convenience, we pay for the service and it is seems logical to exert control over the calls that we accept or do not ac-

Technology, with all of its advantages, has its down side and we cannot have one without the other - even if it means drowning in a sea of faxes or ending up in telephone limbo.

We also delivered 500 sandwiches to St. John's Church in Holly, for residents of the two nearby trailer parks that ere devastated.

I am proud -- but not surprised -- at the response made by Kroger associates throughout metropolitan Detroit.

Throughout the year, Kroger participates in a broad range of activities that give back to our communities. These contributions include this July's Michigan Food Safety Awareness Campaign; corporate and customer support for the Food Bank Council of Michigan's "Food for the Hungry" program; the recent Cash for Kids initiative with Variety -- The Children's Charity; and yearround customer and employee support of groups like the Salvation Army, MDA, the March of Dimes and the Children's Miracle Network. In addition to corporate donations, which last year exceeded $200,000 for the Michigan marketing Area, Kroger encourages and recognizes the community volunteer efforts of its executives and associates.

In all these efforts, we sincerely believe in heartfelt cooperation between employees, customers and local leaders. There are many challenges ahead. We pledge to continue to contribute in all ways possible to the quality of life in those communities we serve.

Michigan has more lighthouses than any other state, and miniature lighthouses are one of the hottest items among collectors. This one, visited by area residents last week, is located adjacent to a U.S. Coast Guard station in the Thumb area. MCN photo by Joan Dyer-Zinner

Lighthouses displayed at museum

Surrounded by the Great Lakes, the State of Michigan has long been noted for the many beautiful lighthouses which line its shores. These historical "Lighthouses of Michigan" are the focal point of the summer exhibit at the Belleville Area Mu-

The exhibit features a stunning, full-color photographic collection of lighthouses which are on loan from Jim and Joanne Yohn of Chicago, formerly of Van Buren Township. Photos of lighthouses located on Lake Michigan, Lake Huron, and Lake Superior are on dis-

The exhibit also includes a 10-foot replica of a typical lighthouse (complete with revolving light) and a recreation of a lighthouse keeper's quarters, as well as a variety of lighthouse instruments loaned by the Dossin Great Lakes Museum on Belle Isle. Several models and photos of Great Lakes ships, an operating foghorn, and various lighthouse memorabilia round out the display.

The museum's current exhibit, which opened during Michigan Week, also features a Michigan campground scene, which includes the old sign from the Rawsonville Bridge Camp, once located at Rawsonville Road on the Huron River.

An exhibit on products "Made in Michigan" includes artifacts from such well-known Michigan businesses as Vernor's, Stroh Brewing Co., Fred Sanders, and the Daisy Air Rifle factory. The exhibits will remain in place through most of the summer, closing to the public on Aug. 16.

The Museum Gift Shop is currently featuring several lighthouse items for sale, including candles, magnets, coloring books and bookmarks.

The Belleville Area Museum is open Tuesdays through Saturdays, noon to 4 p.m. Admission is $1 for adult residents of the Belleville area, $1.50 for nonresidents, and 50 cents for children.

Motown honors industry Automotive Hall of Fame captures spirit of auto makers

Entertainment and enlightening stories of individual accomplishment await every member of the family at the all-new Automotive Hall of Fame opening Aug. 16 in Dear-

Filled with things to see and do, the new Automotive Hall of Fame inspires visitors with stories about the people whose work changed our lives.

"The new Hall of Fame is much different than the car collections found in many museums throughout the world," says Automotive Hall of Fame President Gene McKinney. "It is a true people place."

The mission of the Automotive Hall of Fame is to celebrate accomplished individuals in the worldwide motor vehicle industry for purpose of motivating, inspiring and encouraging others, especially young people, to accomplish more in their own work

"We are the only visitor attraction in the world that represents the global motor vehicle industry," McKinney adds. "Yet visitors do not have to be interested in cars and trucks to enjoy the experience, which is about people, not things.

The Hall of Fame visiting experience begins in the Henry Ford II Lobby. A unique display invites visitors to select a card that describes their own view of themselves - such as innovator, problem- solver, motivator or inventor -- then to use that card to find out who in the Hall of Fame is most like tory surround-sound, highimpact video presentation. Andy then becomes their "host" helping to personalize their visit. The entertaining eight-minute video prepares guests for an entertaining and enlightening visiting experiences that can be completed in as little as 90 minutes.

Following the video presentation, the screen disappears to reveal the Soichiro Honda Atrium, site of special changing exhibits. The Honda Atrium leads to the Hall of Fame Dedication Center, which contains a 12-feet high, 65-feet long mural that celebrates the impact of the motor vehicle on the world's cultures from the late 1800's into the future. The mural is the largest piece of automotive fine art since the Diego Riviera mural in the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The Exhibit Hall contains dozens of exhibits relating to accomplished individuals in the world-wide motor vehicle industry. The experience begins with man's dreams of mobility in the form of a working metal sculpture entitled "Aeropede," which can be operated by visitors. It ends with visions of the future of motor vehicles. Real people behind names like Benz, Chevrolet, Chrysler, Ford, Honda, Mack and Toyota and their accomplishments are revealed to vis-

Westland All-Stars fall to Tri-Village in finals

There was a full moon Friday evening, but the stars apparently weren't shining, especially the Westland All-Stars, over the weekend.

Tri-Village, a team made up of players from the Linwood and Pinconning areas - on the shores of icy Lake Huron, the sunny-side of the state, whipped Westland's All-Stars twice to capture the 1997 Mustang District Title.

The Westland Youth Athletic Association's Mustangs, the designated hosts for the Mustangs (9-10 year olds) district playoffs, found their nemesis in Tri-Village.

The Westlanders dropped a pair of heartbreakers, 6-5, and 8-6 that cost them the district title. "The kids played their hearts out and it was an exciting playoff series to watch," said Keith DeMolay, "unfortunately, we came out on the short end of two crucial games with Tri-Village who was a worthy champion."

The Westland "15" played its first game Friday night against a scrappy Farmington club. Trailing 5-2 in the fourth inning, the Westlanders erupted for four runs in the sixth to win a close one, 6-5, behind some clutch hitting by Vinnie DeLuca and Danny Walsh.

ing, the All-Stars found Tri-Village waiting and ready for the challenge. In a hard-fought game, Tri-Village came out a 5-4 winner, despite stellar pitching performance from a pair of Westlander hurlers, Ryan Carlington and Tom Cichowski and a two-for-three hitting effort by Tim Bingham.

That loss forced Westland into a do-or-die situation in its next trip out on the diamond against a South Farmington team. South Farmington rocked the Stars in the early innings and worked its way to a 6-1 lead before the stunned Westlanders came back.

Westland managed to close the gap and then went on to win an 8-6 victory over their visitors. Scott Fletcher's triple and David Somerville's runscoring single proved to be the decisive hits that lifted West-

Yopp wins national karate championship

By TOM MOORADIAN MCN Staff Writer

The next Karate Kid? How about Canton Township's Brandon Yopp who, at 12, and with only 1 1/2 years experience under his belt - that's Red Belt - has lost only three sparring matches and is a reigning national champion in his age group.

Yopp earned the title at the National Tae Kwon Do Tournament held in Louisville, Kentucky a week ago.

Training under the masterful care and eyes of Grand Master Sang Sop Kil, who owns a 9th Degree Black Belt, the highest achievement of a Karate instructor, Yopp has amassed an incredible 18 first place trophies and nine medals in sparring and forms during his brief career.

"He doesn't tell very many people that he has won, but really likes it when someone else does," says Brandon's father, Trent Yopp who, incidentally, didn't participate in sports and was surprised when his son decided to take classes.

Drivers fleeing police face felony charges

Wayne police officers are sending out a warning in advance to area motorists who may try to outrun the law enforcement while traveling through the community.

State legislators have approved changes to the Fleeing and Eluding law. As of June 1. 1997, it is now considered a felony to speed away from the police especially if it causes harm to others, according to Wayne Police Lt. Keith Thomas.

"Fleeing and eluding is when an officer pulls up behind your vehicle, turns on the lights, and you keep going," said Thomas. If you keep increasing your speed without stopping to adhere to the officer's lights, go through a red light or injure someone as a result of fleeing and eluding police, it is considered a fel-

Luxury car makes its mark on U.S. auto market

I recently had the opportunity to test drive what I would consider one of the most appealing automobiles ever made. This is a car that is fashioned for people who are passionate about driving. The comfort, luxury and power you get with this automobile is just awesome.

It's a singular blend of sheer power, deft handling characteristics and a high level of refined personal luxury. Mark VIII's exterior has been restyled to further stimulate all of your senses.

It is a most captivating example of what a luxury performance coupe should be. Even the most fleeting glance tells you that this is unmistakably a Mark VIII. However, upon closer inspection, you'll notice refinements both subtle and dramatic. You'll notice a curve or two are now more fluid, and some of the body lines have been softened. Just looking at the overall exterior tells you that this is one sleek, distinctive automobile.

For those of you who are always on the go, you will definitely appreciate the comfort and style of the interior. Every switch, lever, and button is geared toward the driver. There is nothing that you can't reach. Even though you are constantly on the move, you value the small details that surround you. Which is why the Mark VIII feels so right.

The seductive allure of real soft supple leather surrounds your every curve, and you'll find plenty of it in this car along with a boast of other comforting amenities. It also has rich hand-polished burled walnut trim and leather and chrome touch zones. The JBL audio system is simply out of this world. The sound quality rivals that of the sound system found in all of the Infiniti's. It includes a 132 watt, six channel amplifier and eight speakers along with an in-dash compact disc player.

Everything in this fine luxury coupe is power from its steering column to its seats. The electronic message center displays the date, time, and trip information, including driving range, fuel used, instantaneous fuel economy and eight different compass headings. Another thoughtful Lincoln touch is the power tilt telescoping steering wheel. This allows you to accurately and effortlessly adjust your steering wheel. It works with the auto glide driver's seat so you can easily enter and exit

Lincoln Mark VIII

The newly designed Lincoln Mark VIII offers a 32-valve 280 horsepower V-8 engine. It has the ability not only to excite, but to perform. With just the touch of a toe, this car was on the move.

It handled superbly, especially on the highway. Hairpin turns, no problem this coupe can turn on a dime. And when passing, at fast speeds, it offered all the power that one would ever need.

What an awesome package. I found it to be so distinctive, stylish, and powerful, that I really had to search long and hard to find some deterrents. The only one that I could find was when you have the cup holders open, you are denied access to the ashtray. That's about it though. Even the trunk had plenty of space, and I found the rear passenger seats to also be comfortable, even if there was a tall person driving.

You still had loads of legroom.

Now we get to the fun part gas and price. The mileage was what I had anticipated 19 miles per gallon city and 26 on the highway. Before I tell you the price of this vehicle, just remember all of the amenities that you are receiving, and most of them come standard. Base price was $34,000 and as tested $39,000.

The satisfaction of owning a Mark VIII goes well beyond the driving experience. It is what a true luxury coupe should be. For those of you who are always on the go, and seem to always be in your car, I can't think of a better auto to spend your time in. So, "fly the coupe" take this one for a test drive. It truly gives you peace

On a list of my favorite summer treats, fresh peaches would be right up there near the top. Now throw in something frozen and so much the better. Here's a peachy recipe that combines both, and another version for all you berry-pickers out there.

FROZEN FRESH PEACH YOGURT

3 cups fresh or frozen (thawed) peach slices

1/2 cup sugar

8 cups vanilla yogurt

Place peaches and sugar in blender or food processor. Cover and blend on medium speed until almost smooth. Stir into yogurt. Pour into 2-quart ice-cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. About 22 servings (1/2 cup each), or one really hefty portion for the peach-passionate. If you've got a 1-quart freezer, just divide the ingredients in half.
